Response :

The institutions play a responsible role to foster multifold potentials in its students by organizing various academic cultural and extracurricular activities by different departments and different wing like-NSS, NCC Red Ribbin club and child protection club etc.

NSS

National Service Scheme (NSS) Plan was initiated by Government of India to inculcate feeling of social responsibility, social awareness, discipline and dignity of labour among the students pursuing higher education. It was in 1990 that a men's unit of 50 was introduced for boy students that was increased to 100 volunteers unit in 1996. During 2011 a women unit of 50 students was started that was increased to a unit of 100 students. Now we run two NSS units of 100 members each. (men's and women's)

The institutional mechanism for tracking students' involvement is the record of NSS activities of last five years. NSS Officers of college Dr. Sangeeta Gour Asst. Prof. English, Dr. Bindu Mahawar Prof. Economic organize regular activities along with Blood-donation awareness, awareness Rallies, Cultural and Literary Programs, Shramdan, Tree Plantation and making the campus polythene and Gutka free. And Nasha Mukti Abiyan, Swachh Bhart, Financial Education, Women Literacy, Save girl child, Child Protection programme, Aids awareness programme, Gender issue, Covid awareness programme by presenting posters. Rally, Street plays (Nukkad Natak) Group songs, group dences, Rangoli, Mahdi etc.

The institution has two very active NSS units that take their responsibilities very seriously. Right in the beginning of session the units decide about the activities to be undertaken during the session. For this they organize orientation program for volunteers of NSS. The volunteers are made aware of their responsibilities, vision and mission of NSS. The volunteer are then apprised of the activities in details and their expected contribution in those activities. NSS volunteers need to be very dedicated, disciplined and ever ready to work for society and institution. They are also required to be environment conscious and are expected to spread this message when on campus and when in society. They are also expected to be a responsible and conscious Indian citizen. They are expected to participate actively in the programs that promote their boned with society

Extension activities are organized by the institution to let students connect with under privileged sections of society. This makes them count on the blessings that they possess. The students learn to identify with villages by holding special camps in villages. The students learn their social obligations by working in close proximity with people. They teach them hygiene and good habits also.

Seven day comp: The two units of college work for institution and neighbourhood community network. A nearby village is chosen during every session and the students and NSS officers work for awareness and betterment is village. This helps students in their overall development as well as offering social service. The students get to learn their social obligations also. During the special camps the students learn to present their views in a group, learn to practice cultural programs, academic debates and working with their own hands.

Participation of villagers in camp activities in indicative of the efforts of institution in this direction. NSS body of the college maintains a record of notes/comments of persons visiting camps organized. Higher Officers, Students and faculty members also visit the special camps and watch how the volunteers live enthusiastically with minimal facilities.
